ATLANTIC REGIONAL COUNCIL (ARC)

The Atlantic Regional Council of CFUW was formed in 1988 to help improve communication, cooperation, and friendship among CFUW clubs in the four Atlantic Provinces, and to promote the policies and programs of CFUW.

Organizational meetings were held in Truro in 1987, and in March 1988 in Sackville, New Brunswick. The CFUW Atlantic Regional Council inaugural meeting was held in Wolfville in October 1988 with 16 Clubs represented. The ARC Executive includes a Council President, with four Regional Directors (one for each of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Labrador and Prince Edward Island) and a Secretary-Treasurer. The ARC President also serves as Vice President for the Atlantic Region on the national CFUW Board of Directors, alongside four other regional VPs (representing B.C., Prairies, Quebec, Ontario).

The purpose of CFUW ARC is:

- To facilitate communication and cooperation of the clubs of the Atlantic Region
- To encourage and initiate studies on matters of mutual concern in the region
- To promote an understanding of provincial, regional and national issues and their implications through dialogue among member clubs
- To promote the policies and programs of CFUW, and
- To cooperate with other organizations on issues consistent with CFUW policies

ARC holds an Annual General Meeting and a Regional Conference every spring, hosted by one of the member clubs.

Active CFUW clubs can currently be found in 7 towns and cities across the four Atlantic provinces: Fredericton, Moncton, Charlottetown, Halifax, Wolfville, Cape Breton and St. John's.
